

Expatriate Pensions

Pensions are a complicated business at the best of times. The topic can be even more complex for expatriates who may find themselves faced with a portfolio of frozen pensions, which have been gathered during a career in the UK and overseas.

It is important to review these schemes from time to time as, although, these pensions may be frozen, they can still act as a valuable element in a retirement portfolio.

We can help. The Fry Group offers a Pension Review Service for expatriates, which can help by providing an annual pension review, advice on investments, information about amalgamating pensions into more efficient schemes and moving pensions offshore, if appropriate.

We all understand the importance of pensions, but it can be difficult to put aside time to ensure that your arrangements will enable you to enjoy the lifestyle you want after retirement. Good quality personal advice is vital, so it is important to talk through your individual circumstances with an expert.

If you would like to review your pension situation please contact Aidan Bailey on 01903 231545 or aidan.bailey@thefrygroup.co.uk

The initial consultation is at our expense and, if it is agreed that we can help, we can then be remunerated for any work through fees, commission or a combination of both.
